

Before You Begin — The Question First

1. Get the question from the client
 2. Ask yourself: which house, planet, or sign should I analyze to answer this question?
 3. Always analyze the Ascendant (1st house) first, then go to the specific house in question
 4. Decide whether you're analyzing a house or a planet

If You Are Analysing a HOUSE

Step 1 — Sign + House Pick one keyword for the house. Combine each building block of the sign separately with that house keyword » one sentence per building block. No planets.

Choose a keyword that is easy to mix and match with sign building blocks.

Step 2 — Planet(s) in that House Combine planet keyword + house keyword only. No sign building blocks. One planet at a time.

Keep planet-in-sign and planet-in-house separate. If you use the sign's building blocks here, you're no longer analyzing the house — you've shifted topic.

Step 3 — Relationship between Planets in the House Only if planets are closely conjunct, or one is in the other's sign, or they aspect each other. Use compound relationship (permanent + temporary). Apply the positive or difficult twist based on the relationship to your sentence from Step 2.

Step 4 — Ruler of House in Sign Find the ruler of that house. Note which sign it's placed in » ruler keyword + building blocks of that sign. No house keyword here.

Step 5 — Karaka in Sign Find the natural Karaka of that house. Note which sign it's placed in » Karaka keyword + building blocks of that sign.

Choose a Karaka keyword that overlaps with the house keyword — this keeps focus on the house you're analyzing. Never combine Karaka keyword + house keyword directly — the Karaka is the same for all 8 billion people, so that sentence is universal, not specific.

Step 6 — Aspects on the House Is any planet aspecting the house or the Karaka? If yes » analyze the relationship between the aspecting planet and the Karaka, and apply the positive or difficult twist. If no » skip.

Step 7 — Exchanges (Parivartana Yoga) Is there an exchange between the ruler and another planet? If yes » bring this in at the Karaka step. Exchange is very powerful and creates a deep link between the two houses involved.

Step 8 — Emphasizing Repeated Patterns After all steps, look across building blocks. If Yang, or Mutable, or Water (etc.) appears repeatedly across multiple steps » that quality is emphasized for this house. If no single quality dominates » nothing is emphasized.

Bonus: Relationship between Karaka and Ruler — only analyze if they aspect or are conjunct. Skip otherwise.

If You Are Analysing a PLANET

Step 1 — Planet in Sign Planet keyword + each building block of the sign » one sentence per building block.

Step 2 — Relationship between Planet and Owner of that Sign Compound friendship/enmity (permanent + temporary) » colors how the planet performs.

Step 3 — Planets conjunct with that Planet Only if closely conjunct, aspecting, or one is in the other's sign » analyze the relationship and apply the twist to your sentence.

What Goes With What — Quick Reference

Step	Combine	Never bring in
Sign + House	Sign building blocks + House keyword	Planets

Planet in House	Planet keyword + House keyword	Sign building blocks
Ruler/Karaka in Sign	Planet keyword + Sign building blocks	House keyword
Karaka + House keyword	✗ Never — same for everyone	—

Advanced (later): Combine all three — planet + sign + house. Master two at a time first.

Golden Rules

- One building block per sentence — never combine two building blocks in one sentence
- Write a sentence at every step — don't just list, analyze
- Show sources in brackets after each word
- Never chase rulerships in circles — stop and write a sentence
- Always ask: is this the same for all 8 billion people? If yes, you're doing it wrong
- Analyze your relationship with house significations — not other people directly
- Exaltation, debilitation, sign archetypes — comes later, don't use yet
